POSITIVE PERSONALITY TRAITS

Reds have a desire to win; to do something meaningful with their lives. They need to earn their own keep and want complete control over what they do. They are goal-oriented and great at implementing ideas. They will take an idea from someone and make it a success. They have the ability to see potential in people and bring it out. Reds have a “take charge” personality.

NEGATIVE PERSONALITY TRAITS

Reds can have a lack of sensitivity. They can be bossy and aggressive. They won't let anyone or anything stop them from getting what they want. They like to take credit and think they know everything. Reds hate details, feel it's a waste of time, and can push people too hard because they don't take 'no' for an answer.

MEETING THE NEEDS

Draw them out with questions to show reasons for change. Promote competition. Let them share in the vision. Let them make their own decision. Get to the point quickly. Praise in front of others.

POSITIVE PERSONALITY TRAITS

Yellows are happy and entertaining people. They love to talk as well as listen, and they love to give as well as receive. They have strong people skills and love meeting new, different people. They love to make people feel good. They are extroverted and energized by others.

NEGATIVE PERSONALITY TRAITS

Yellows get bored quickly. They avoid physical and emotional pain. They have a short attention span. When a project stops being fun, they stop working on it.

MEETING THE NEEDS

Suggest that making a change will improve their image. Present new ideas with enthusiasm. Consistently support them. Make the process fun, and reward them with completion. Give them time to think, but be sure to follow up.

POSITIVE PERSONALITY TRAITS

Greens are calm, amiable, liked by others, down to earth, and good with detail. If they feel comfortable and secure, they will share their ideas. They have the ability to help change lives because they are great listeners, creative problem-solvers, and they want to make everyone happy.

NEGATIVE PERSONALITY TRAITS

Greens hate to take sides. They like to sit on the fence rather than voice their opinion. They have a tendency to avoid controversy. They try to please everyone. Blame others for their situation. Won't take responsibility for meeting the need. Passive-aggressive tendencies.

MEETING THE NEEDS

Show them the need for change. Show them how to save time, energy, and money. Help them commit to a project. Support them with encouragement. Praise the completion of tasks. Ask questions to discern their needs. Let them know that the responsibility for a decision must be theirs.

POSITIVE PERSONALITY TRAITS

Blues are committed to their decisions and situations. Sensitive. They love one-on-one conversations. They are very selective in their choice of work and friends. They are introverted: their energy comes from being alone. They love facts and have good attention to detail. They accept responsibility and follow through.

NEGATIVE PERSONALITY TRAITS

Blues are private people; they share only a small amount of who they are. They are very sensitive and their feelings are easily hurt. They tend not to accept criticism well and are more vulnerable to depression and unforgiveness.

MEETING THE NEEDS

List reasons why change would be good for them. Give them time to think it over. Give them a plan of action. Follow through on your part. Thank them privately. Answer all of their questions with facts.
